

"Life, a million facets!".

Just like life has a lot of cycles and parts of the flowers above too, the picture shows a fully grown flower close and at a far we seen ingrown flowers and the closer the flower is the blurry the picture is which reflects that we can't understand clearly if we look too close and neither can we if it is too far. The picture has full life cycle of a flower. Like the flowers are surrounded by leaves we are also surrounded by people. Not just any but different and unique people like the other type of leaves .

Life has ups and downs but that's why it is so great if not for the failure we never would say there is something as success. we have so much of beautiful scenery around , although evolution is part of life we shouldn't cut off the forests to make space we should use the space that's already empty or not useful. we should make the earth better when we are gone than when we are born. I feel like the stems of the flower are our parents or friends who give us courage and comfort in tough times and help us. We can compare everything to anything in this wonderful world.
